NORMATIVE AND POLITICAL CHARACTERISTICS OF LEGAL AREAS IN THE KINGDOM OF SERBS, CROATS AND SLOVENES AT THE TIME OF UNIFICATION

Summary: The Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes was, by its characteristics, a conglomerate of differences, above all legal and political, which were a burdensome factor in the creation of a new state. First, the question of the form of organization of the state, federalism or unitarism, arose. On the other side were the concrete problems of the diversity of judicial and legal systems. The problem was not solved even during the validity of the Vidovdan Constitution. Only in the Sixth of January dictatorship was this problem effectively tackled. Legal and political problems were also common economic problems: the different economic development of certain parts of the country, the problem of currency equalization, unification of the banking system.
